

IOSH Working Safely Certificate (1 Day Course)

(Institute of Occupational Safety and Health)

This one-day IOSH Working Safely Course is a basic risk management health and safety certificate for employees. It enables people who work as part of a team to meet their responsibilities for health and safety in the workplace. This course is aimed specifically at those people who are required to work safely and efficiently in accordance with their company's policies and procedures.

Training Objectives

At the end of the training participants will:

- Understand why they must work safely.
- Understand the difference between hazards and risks.
- Understand hazard identification.
- Appreciate and improve upon safety performance within the workplace.

1. Introducing working safely

This module stresses the realities of the human suffering behind the statistics and emphasises the importance of personal responsibility.

2. Defining hazard and risk

This module puts 'hazard' and 'risk' into everyday language and uses familiar examples to explain these terms. Focusing on the six broad hazard groups, delegates are asked to think about the hazards and risks they come across in their own work. Risk assessments are explained – delegates learn that we all carry out informal assessments day in, day out.

3. Identifying common hazards

All of the main workplace hazards are covered in this module – entrances and exits, work traffic, fire, chemicals, electricity, physical and verbal abuse, bullying, stress, noise and the working environment, slips, trips and falls, and manual handling. Relevant hazards to each delegates' workplace will be covered.

4. Improving safety performance

This module deals with systems and processes, making sure that any jargon is explained in easily understood terms. The session bridges the gap between management and the workforce, encouraging delegates to play a part in processes that are commonly seen as the responsibility of their manager or supervisor.

At the end of the course delegates will undertake a short multiple assessment and three hazard/risk spotting exercises.

Delegates who have been successful will be provided with an IOSH certificate.
Price is £152 + VAT per person.
